Alfa Laval wins SEK 260 million offshore pumping systems order

Alfa Laval – a world leader in heat transfer, centrifugal separation and fluid handling – has won an order to supply Framo pumping systems for FPSO projects in Angola. The order, booked in the Marine & Offshore Pumping Systems segment, has a value of approximately SEK 260 million and delivery is scheduled for 2015 and 2016.

The order comprises offshore pumping systems for two FPSOs (Floating Production Storage and Offloading vessel). Once completed, the vessels will be moored outside the Angola coast.

“I am pleased to announce the third large order for our Framo products since the brand was included in our offering through the acquisition of Frank Mohn AS,” says Lars Renström, President and CEO of the Alfa Laval Group. “These products fit very well in our portfolio of reliable and efficient products for the marine and offshore oil and gas markets.”
